

ANNUAL REPORT 2021/22

PROGRAMME GOAL

The Compost Collective supports Auckland Council's vision to educate, inspire and equip Aucklanders to divert their organic waste through local composting, by delivering and supporting a behaviour change programme, both in person and online, for the Auckland Region. This is consistent with the principles of the WMMP.

SUPPORTED BY

EcoMatters

EcoMatters Environment Trust is a registered charity that aims to connect people and place, and to nurture kaitiakitanga (guardianship).

We support the community with the knowledge and tools to live more sustainably.

Kaipātiki Project

Kaipātiki Project is an innovative Eco-Hub growing a sustainable future for people and nature.

We do this by empowering people, inspiring connection with nature and enabling sustainable living.

REGIONAL FACILITATORS

Rodney Nor-West & West Beaches

North Shore & Bays

PHILLIPA (PIP) BEAGLEY

I am passionate about growing food and therefore passionate about growing soil. Completing the cycle is important to me.

Urban South East

HARI NARAYAN

I want to share my gardening and composting knowledge to the rest of the community so we can maintain good soil health and grow healthy vegetables.

Waiheke

KAYLEIGH APPLETON

I believe composting, like surfing, is something that everyone in Aotearoa should enjoy on some scale because it immerses you in nature and it's cyclical systems.

Rodney North

West Auckland

Central

JUDY KEATS

I will encourage you to change your viewpoint on household waste, and show you how to turn it into a resource.

Rural South

JENNIFER KERR

I love building soil through composting. Worm farming is my favourite. Composting doesn't have to be hard work!

Urban Papakura

SUSTAINABLE PAPA KURA

We are a charitable organisation promoting waste minimisation and resource recovery in and around Papakura, keen to get more people on-board with composting.

COMMUNITY FACILITATORS

Gardens for Health

RICHARD MAIN

I am keen to share an organic approach to turning waste streams into black gold and grow an abundance of food.

Chinese Community

ESTELLA LEE

Composting is the best way to handle our organic waste and kitchen waste and enrich the soil in our home garden.

Korean Community

HYE JUNG KIM

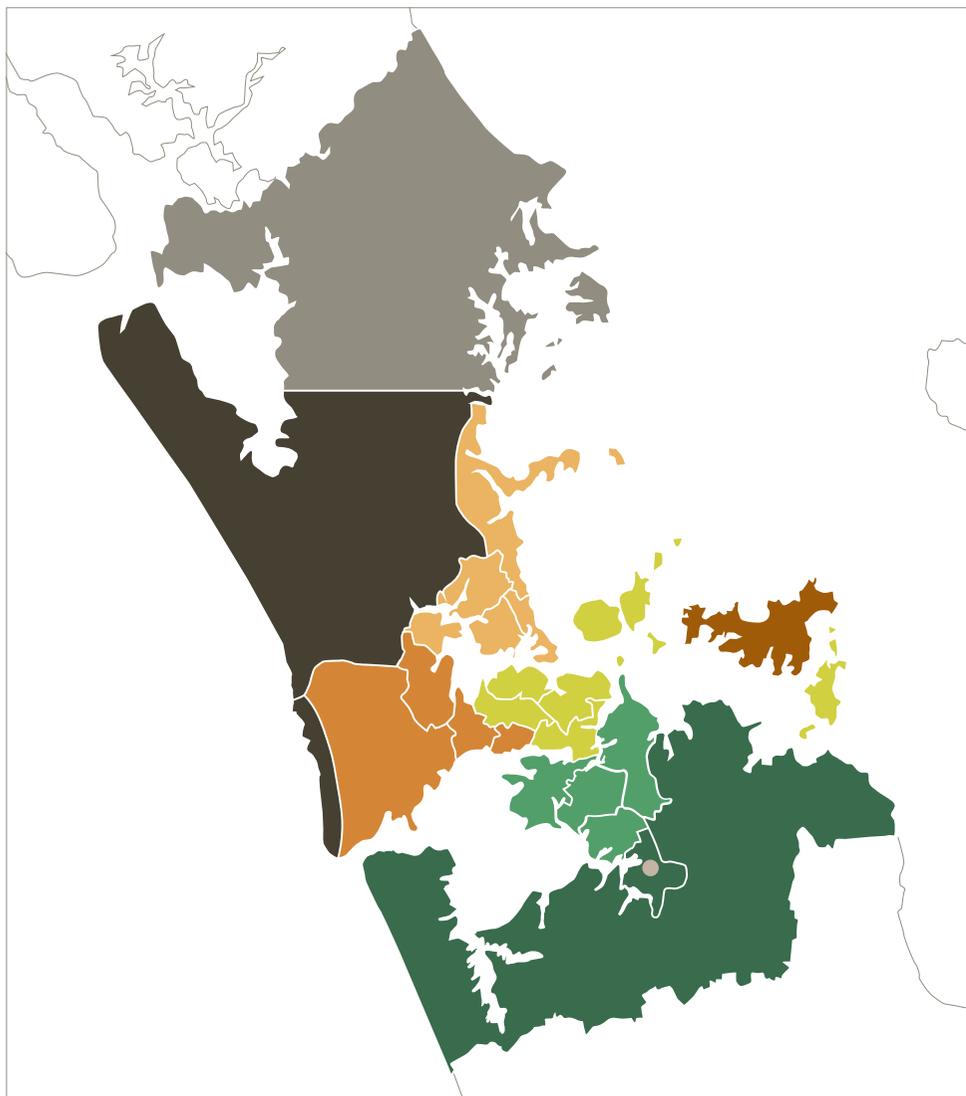

I am keen to share this useful information with our Korean community and nourish soil for the next generation.

Pacifica Community / PVA

THERESE MANGOS

I enjoy all kinds of composting. The key is to keep it simple and choose a system that works for you.

*Covid19 and lockdowns affecting engagement

How much of your food scraps are you currently composting?

Prior to attending a workshop 34% of survey respondents composted no food scraps at all. Six months after their workshop 62% composted three quarters to all of their food scraps.

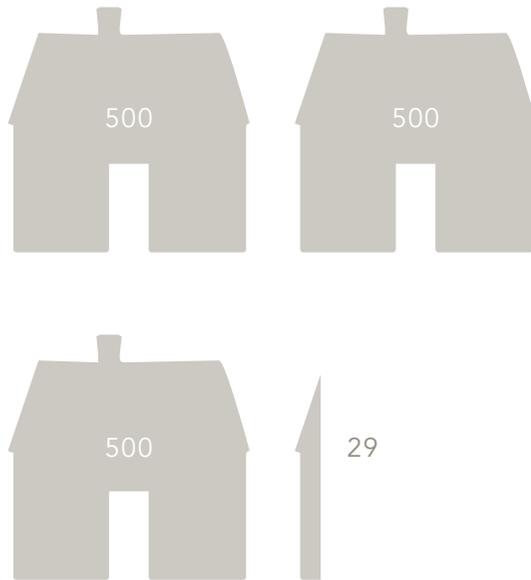

FOOD WASTE DIVERTED FROM LANDFILL

2021 / 22

Households Composting

1,529

Assumes a 50% success rate across households reached in 2021/22

Average Food Waste per Household

3kg p/wk

158kg p/yr

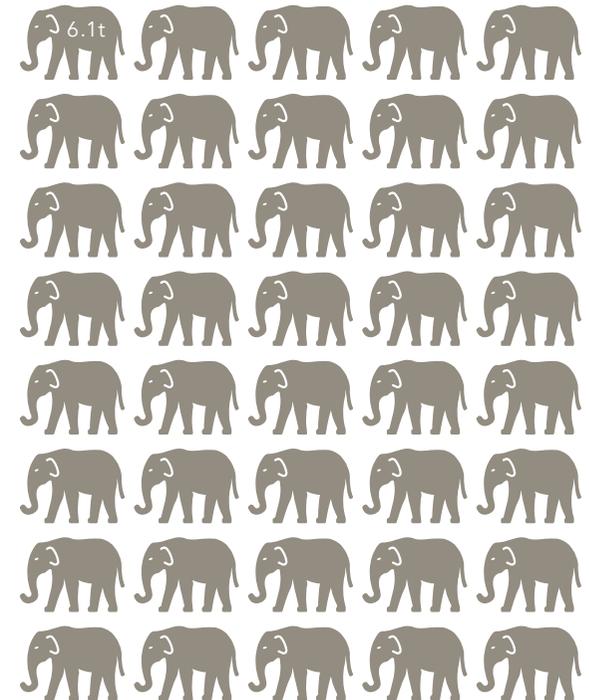

From the Solid Waste Audit Report (SWAP) 2016 which informed Auckland's Waste Assessment 2017

Tonnes of Food Waste Diverted

241.1 tonnes

Equal to approximately 40 elephants

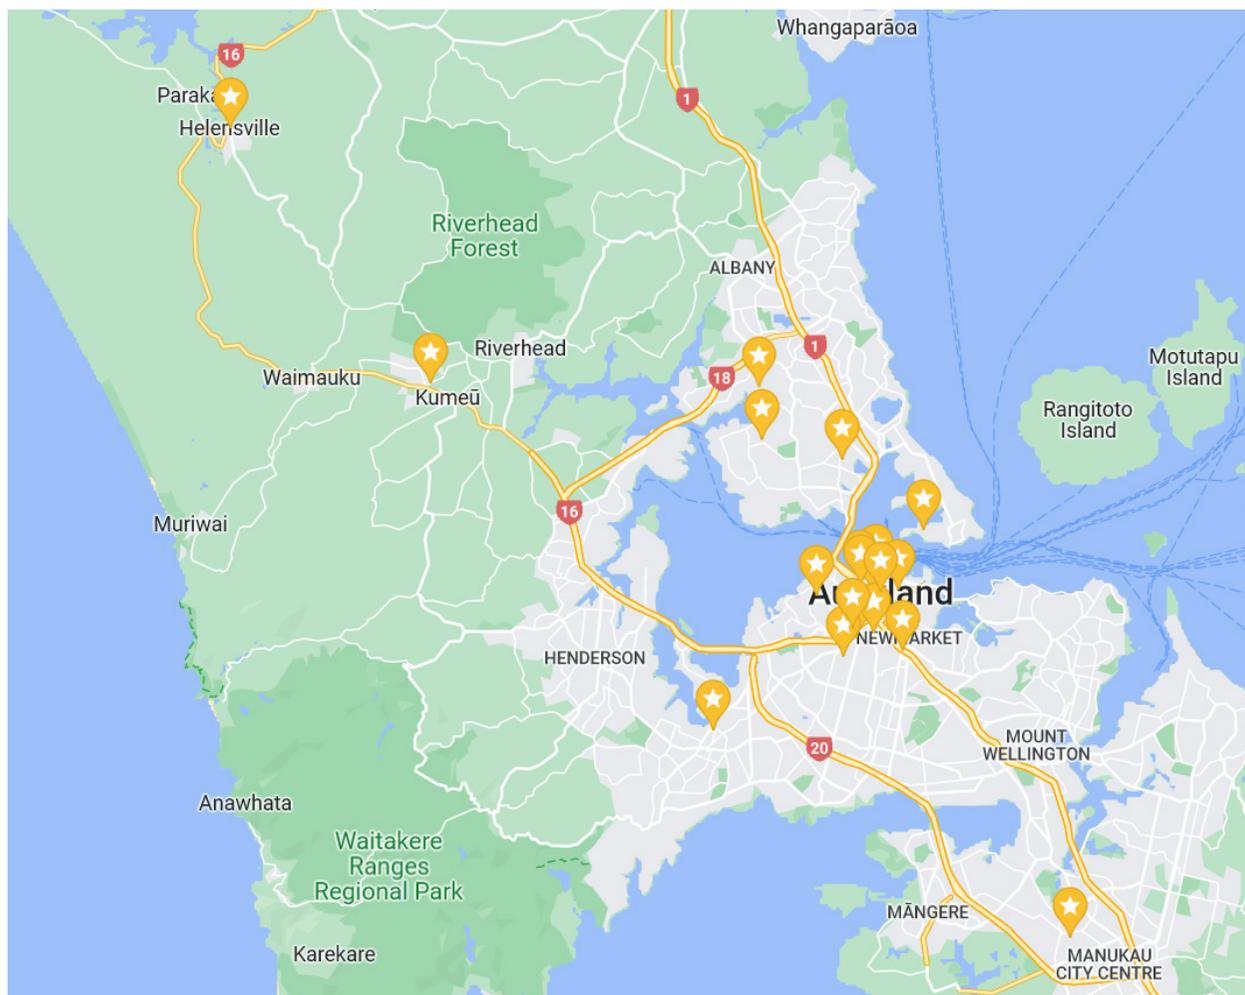

Assumes 80% of a household's annual food waste is being composted in some way. So this multiplies kg per household by number of households composting.

COMMUNITY COMPOSTING HUB FUND

In 2021, Compost Collective launched the Compost Hub Fund Grant, issuing grants of up to $500 to support community composting. The grant was allocated in its entirety to 20 composting hubs in the region, and will continue into 2023.

COMPOST COLLECTIVE PROMOTION HIGHLIGHTS

Social media collaboration success

PREDATOR FREE NZ

Rodents are the number one reason people say they don't compost. Together with PFNZ, we came up with a week of content for social media and shared top tips daily on keeping compost rodent-free, a Q&A was linked to with advice and tips from our tutors, and ran a giveaway of a rat trap.

MAGGIE MARILYN

Sustainable NZ clothing brand, Maggie Marilyn asked us to create some content for their newsletter and website on composting. We shared the article on social media, it went out in their newsletter and sits permanently on their website.

NZ Organic coverage

NZ ORGANIC MAGAZINE

We worked together with NZ Organic Magazine, supplying them with all the information they needed to write an article on worm farms, in their November issue. We also shared this on Facebook encouraging people to take a look at the article.

SHAREWASTE PROMOTION HIGHLIGHTS

Carla (CEO of EcoMatters) was interviewed on TVNZ Breakfast on Thursday 9 June. The feedback was great and the spike we saw on social media, ShareWaste NZ app downloads, and the Compost Collective website, was huge.

Have you seen the little coffee cups that have popped up on the ShareWaste NZ map? ☺

These are cafes and businesses that have various organic matter for you to collect for free - fish heads, bagasse (pulpy leftover from pressing sugarcane), coffee grinds, to name some.

If you are a cafe that would like to donate food scraps or other organic bits, join us at www.sharewaste.org.nz (or linktree in bio)

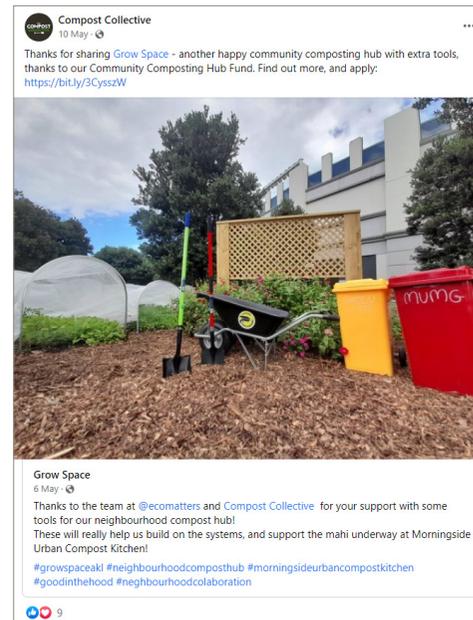

HAVE YOU SEEN SHAREWASTE'S NEWEST ICON?

We have continued promotion of ShareWaste on social media, and have seen good results. There was a 188% rise in Android app downloads (525 downloads), and a 133% rise in Apple app downloads (800 downloads) across New Zealand, with users jumping up by around 2000, to 9,082, and map listings up by 344 to 1,190. Twelve of our social media posts were either about, or included ShareWaste, and continue to be amongst our posts with the highest engagement.

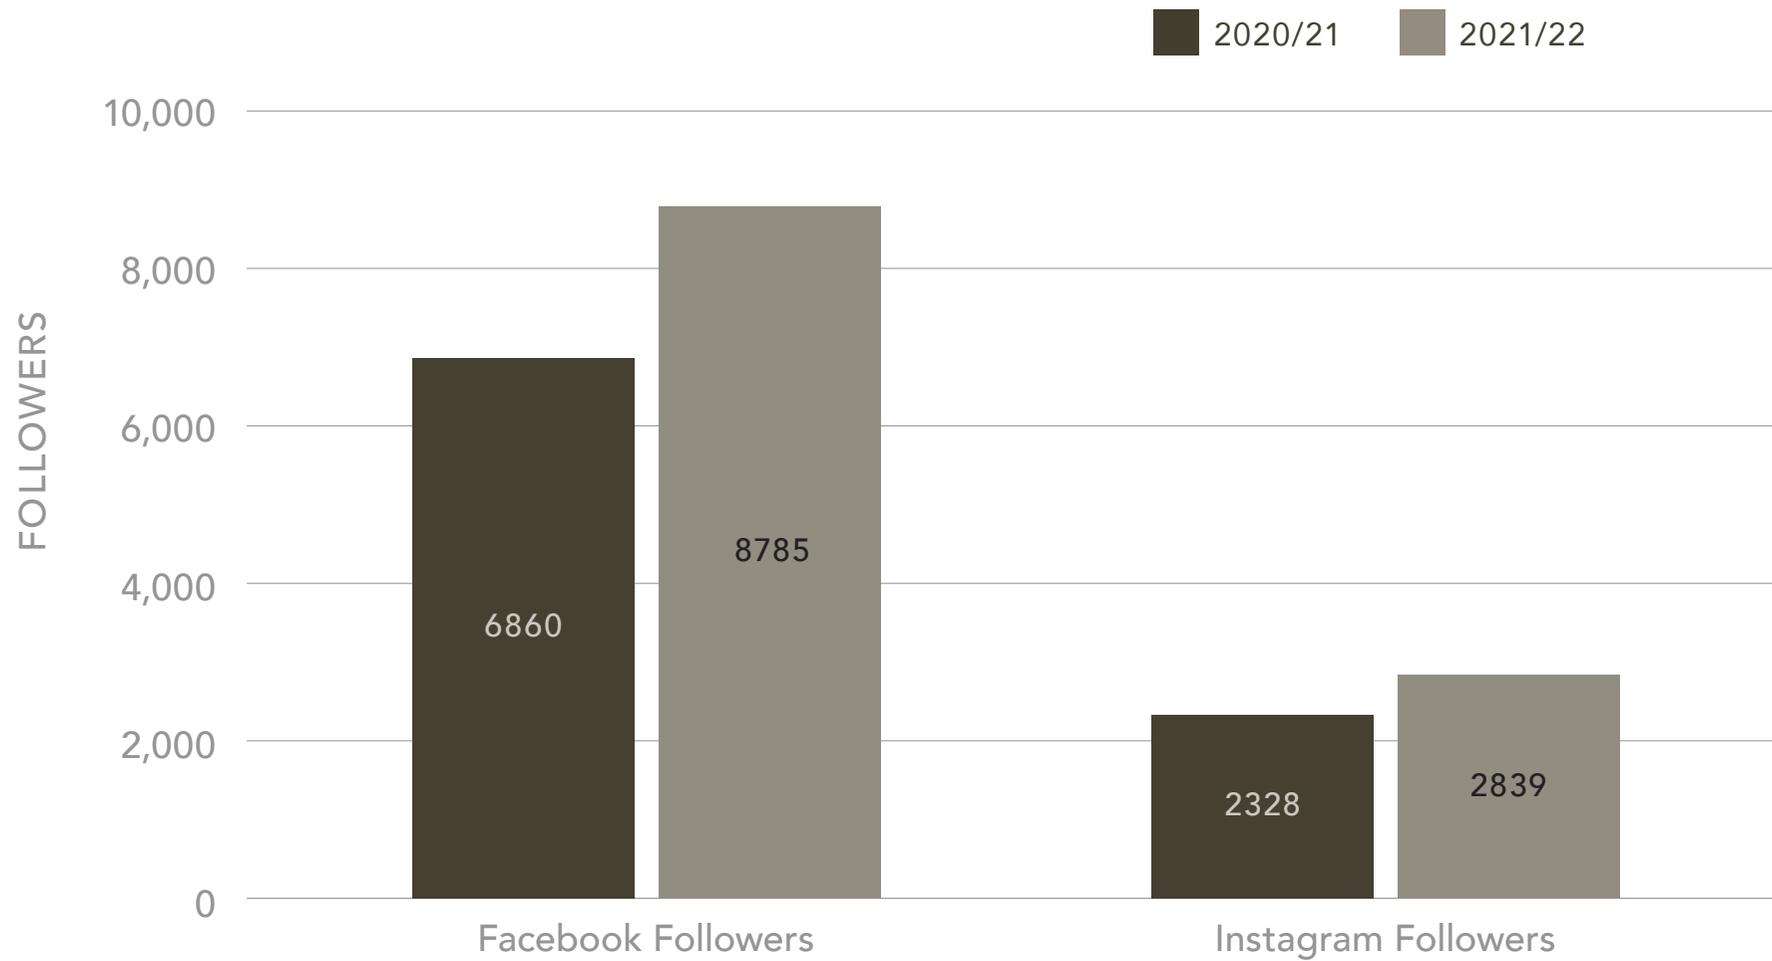

COMMUNITY COMPOSTING HUB FUND PROMOTION

We promoted the hub fund on our social media from its launch at the end of October. Recipients shared photos of their hub and how their money was spent on social media. This showed positive fund outcomes and inspired others to start their own, or join their local community hub. We also had an article in the November Getting to Zero newsletter, Make the Most of Waste website, the EcoMatters newsletter.

SOCIAL MEDIA GROWTH

SHARING SUCCESS STORIES

This year, we continued to source and share stories of how Aucklanders are making composting an easy part of their everyday life, to show how simple and fun it can be.

LENA'S COMPOSTING JOURNEY

Lena moved to New Zealand last year and starting composting for the first time. We checked in with her a few months after completing a workshop to find out how her journey is going.

EDUARDO, THE BOKASHI DONOR

Eduardo doesn't have the space for compost in his own home but is a keen composter. He tells us what he has learnt about Bokashi and how his local community composting hub has helped him.

SHAREWASTE ON HOLIDAY

Victoria was keen to continue composting on a family holiday. She connected with a host on ShareWaste, and each day would drop off the food waste created by several families camping together, to the host.

ADAM'S STORY

Adam wants his family to do their bit for the environment through composting. His small children love their worm farm and are involved in every step of the process.
